

I would like to comment about the proposal to lessen the Indiana Telephone Privacy law protections. Since signing up for the Indiana telephone privacy law life has been so much more pleasant at our house. We are not intrupted at meals

We are not pressured to buy from our home. We are not afraid to answer the phone in the evening for fear it is a telemarketer trying to sell us something. They called as late as eleven pm at night. I believe that we should have the right to choose if we want to receive sales calls at home. We are bombared with junk mail but at least we do not have to be rude to someone on the phone. Some salespersons would not take no for an answer.

Please do not lessen Indiana's Privacy law protections but possibly provide that service to the whole country. I have many friends in Ohio that wish they had the enjoyment of no telemarketers at home.

Thank you.
